

The Paris attacks may have succeeded in blocking the climate march, but they did nothing to quash the creative spirit of civil society actors.

The massive Climate march, planned for Sunday 29 November, was replaced by a giant shoe installation symbolizing the march. Footwear belonging to famous personalities such as Pope Francis and UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon were displayed on the Place de la République as part of an installation of over 11,000 shoes, put up by activists. And instead of marching, thousands gathered to form a human chain that went from Place de la République to Place de la Nation.

Over 600,000 people took to the streets in 175 countries around the world to call for an ambitious deal at the Bourget.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=bn4eomzofhs> | Phare

Bavaria's Mayor Places to 3

The City of London Mayor's Office has announced that it will be using a digital platform to help parents sign up their children for school.