

The United Nations seeks to build momentum on recent advances in climate change and the sustainable development agenda by convening the first ever UN Global Sustainable Transport Conference in Ashgabat, Turkmenistan.

The two-day conference, which opens Saturday, will bring together senior representatives of more than 80 countries, as well as civil society and the business community.

UN Global Sustainable Transport Conference Video