UN Special Envoy takes note of agreement on constitution drafting committee
Staffan de Mistura, the Special Envoy for Syria, attended the Congress of the Syrian National Dialogue in Sochi, Russia on 29-30 January. In remarks following the adoption of a Final Declaration, the UN Envoy said he took note of the agreement on the formation of a constitutional committee comprising the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic delegation along with a wide-represented opposition delegation for drafting a constitutional reform. “You did work hard today. You concluded that a Constitutional Committee should, at the very least, comprise the Government, Opposition representatives in the intra-Syrian talks in Geneva, Syrian experts, civil society, independents, tribal leaders and women - and women. I have heard your appeal that this assignment comes to the UN to get a Constitutional Committee established”. Mr. de Mistura added that he will be consulting widely and will be indicating as soon as possible how he intends to proceed in setting a schedule and process for constitution drafting in Geneva.

In a statement prior to the Sochi meeting, the Secretary-General noted that the Congress would be an important contribution to a revived intra-Syrian talks process under the auspices of the United Nations in Geneva, based on the full implementation of the Geneva Communiqué (2012) and Security Council resolution 2254 (2015).

More than 270,000 civilians displaced by violence in north-west Syria, UN Security Council is told Briefing the Security Council on Syria on 30 January, Deputy Relief Chief Ursula Mueller said an estimated 13.1 million Syrians are in need of protection and humanitarian assistance, including 6.1 million people who are displaced within the country. Ms. Mueller voiced particular concern for the safety and protection of civilians caught up in the violence in north-west Syria. “Airstrikes and fighting in southern Idlib and northern Hama have resulted in over 270,000 people being forced out of their homes since 15 December, driving people from their homes to other areas of Idlib”, she said. Further north, in Afrin, the United Nations is carefully monitoring the situation of over 300,000 people living in the district that is witnessing fighting.

UN condemns attack on hospital and medical facilities in northern Syria Regional Humanitarian Coordinator for the Syria Crisis Panos Moumtzis spoke out against the attacks on health services and staff in northern Syria. On the morning of 29 January, the Owdai Hospital in Saraqab City in Idlib Governorate was damaged by two airstrikes, which destroyed part of the hospital building and rendered it inoperable. The attack reportedly occurred as the hospital was receiving injured people from another airstrike on Sarqab’s main market an hour earlier. “This brutal attack is the fourth time within 10 days, that a hospital in Saraqab was impacted by an airstrike resulting in major structural damage. Initial reports received showed at least five people were killed, including a child, and injuries to at least six people, including three medical staff”, the UN official said in a statement on 30 January.

The United Nations calls for an end to attacks on medical units and health staff, and calls on all parties to take all measures to protect civilians.

UNRWA launches a US$ 800 million appeal for its operation in Syria and occupied Palestinian territory

Amid a funding crisis, the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA) launched on 30 January an appeal for its emergency programmes of over US$ 800 million. Of that amount, about US$ 400 million are intended for humanitarian assistance for Palestine refugees in Syria and the occupied Palestinian territory (oPt). The appeal also covers some 50,000 Palestine refugees from Syria who have fled to Lebanon and Jordan. At a launch event in Geneva, UNRWA Commissioner-General, Pierre Krähenbühl, explained that the majority of Palestine refugees in the occupied Palestinian territory and from Syria “rely on UNRWA to provide aid which is literally life-saving, including food, water, shelter and medical assistance. Our appeal,” he said, “enables UNRWA to continue delivering desperately needed relief to those affected by deepening emergency situations. However, the Agency’s critical financial crisis following the reduction in US funds threatens our ability to deliver these vital services.”

Respect for human rights key to Syria peace- Angelina Jolie

During a visit of the Za’atari refugee camp in Jordan on 28 January, UNHCR Special Envoy Angelina Jolie said that any negotiated solution to Syria’s conflict must respect the human rights and dignity of all Syrians, including millions of refugees living in neighbouring countries. On her fifth visit to Jordan since 2011, Ms. Jolie visited families living in Za’atari camp, the largest refugee settlement in the Middle East and home to more than 80,000 Syrians. “We should never forget that the war began with demands by Syrians for greater human rights,” she told a news conference at the camp. “Peace in their country has to be built on that”, she added.

Special Envoy concludes new round of UN-facilitated peace talks

Wrapping up a 9th round of Intra-Syrian talks in Vienna, Special Envoy Staffan de Mistura told reporters on 26 January that “the ultimate goal of a constitutional process is to enable the Syrian people to freely and independently determine their own future in UN-supervised parliamentary and presidential elections, meeting the requirements laid out in resolution 2254.” Recalling that the only sustainable solution to the Syria crisis is through “an inclusive and Syrian-led political process,” the Special Envoy said. “I share the immense frustration of millions of Syrians, inside and outside the country, at the lack of a political settlement,” Mr. de Mistura said, expressing hope that the talks in Sochi would contribute to a revived and credible intra-Syrian talks, which he plans to reconvene “in the near future.”

UNICEF alarmed by toll of escalating violence on children
As fighting escalated in several parts of Syria, UNICEF has received alarming reports of at least eleven children killed and many more injured in ongoing violence in Afrin district, north-west Syria. In neighbouring Idlib, at least nine children were reportedly killed in the past week alone in attacks on the towns of Saraqab and Khan Shaykhoun. In Damascus, three children were killed in an attack in the Bab Touma area of the Old City. “The grim tally of children killed in Syria in the past two weeks has increased daily”, UNICEF Representative in Syria, Fran Equiza, warned on 26 January. “Nearly seven years into the conflict, children continue to be the hardest hit by unprecedented destruction, displacement and death. They have lost lives, homes and childhoods. Enough is enough.”

UNRWA launched on 20 January 2018 the #DignityIsPriceless global campaign in response to the unprecedented funding reductions by the U.S. Government to protect the dignity of Palestine refugees by providing emergency food assistance to the most vulnerable, and by not disrupting the education of their children and healthcare for families. Through a call to action, UNRWA aims to raise five hundred million USD (500$M). #FundUNRWA #DignityIsPriceless

Since the launch of the campaign, more than 15 million meals have been shared.
#Unite4Heritage is a global movement run by UNESCO that aims to celebrate and safeguard cultural heritage and diversity around the world. Launched in response to the unprecedented attacks on world heritage sites, the campaign calls on everyone to stand up against extremism and radicalization by celebrating the places, objects and cultural traditions that make the world such a rich and vibrant place.

#NoLostGeneration: The initiative was launched by UNICEF and partners in 2013 to focus attention on the plight of children affected by the Syrian crisis. By articulating real concerns about the possible ‘loss’ of a generation of children to the effects of violence and displacement, the initiative put education and child protection at the centre of the response inside Syria and across the refugee hosting countries (Turkey, Lebanon, Jordan, Iraq and Egypt).
